

There was not really a css nor an html difference. The only difference I could see since I limited our viewport, Microsoft Edge and Firefox both compensated seeing that sliver of background that I could see on Chrome since I am on a laptop that has a wider viewport. The sidebars and loading UI is also different along with the slight reconfiguration of the favicon from both browsers instead of Chrome.